MARC ALESSI
New York State Assemblyman

Marc Alessi is committed to improving the quality of life for his constituent. In addition to fighting to bring greater accountability to government, Marc supports legislation that will protect access to quality, affordable healthcare; enhance our economy; create jobs; and provide our children with a quality education, without overburdening taxpayers. Marc has concentrated his efforts on maintaining affordable utility prices for Long Islanders. He helped enforce the state's Procurement Law to ensure LIPA puts all of its contracts out to bid, and fought for an audit of LIPA to ensure that ratepayers aren't paying more than their fair share. Marc is also working to promote green energy technology that will lower energy costs, protect our environment, and reduce our dependence on foreign oil. To that end, Marc authored legislation to make biodiesel a reality, helped pass the net-metering law, and fought against Broadwater.

Another one of Marc's priorities is delivering real tax relief, offering a well-deserved respite for hardworking Suffolk residents who are being crushed by disproportionately high property taxes. Steps in the right direction have been made by rejecting taxes and fees that would unfairly nickel-and-dime the already struggling middle class—but more work needs to be done to help keep taxes down.
